Italian Wine

ABRUZZO

Two major geographical influences provide a microclimate conducive to producing healthy fruit from the indigenous Montepulciano vine. The moderating effect from the Adriatic Sea, coupled with the ability of the Pennine mountains to trap warm air, creates Abruzzo's unique climate. A little-known fact is that many highly regarded wines from France and Italy contain varying measures of Abruzzo wines in their blend, thereby making Abruzzo important not just in its own right but for European winemaking as a whole. Our own Montepulciano D'Abruzzo remains excellent again this year, very easy to drink, Tre Saggi continues to impress as our higher-value entry from the region. Gran Sasso's Pecorino has sold very well and we are pleased to announce that we will also take on their spectacular Montepulciano's single vineyard.

BASILICATA

Basilicata has focussed its DOC production on just one grape, but that grape is one of Italy's best. The Aglianico red grape has its origins in Greek stock dating before the Romans arrived, meaning that some of the zones have been growing grapes for thousands of years.

CAMPANIA

When Italy started to overhaul its wines in the 1980's, Campania was ignored for a long time as being deeply unfashionable, sticking with native varieties such as Fiano Di Avellino and Falanghina at a time when everyone else was enthusing over the likes of Chardonnay and other young upstarts. However recently, in a trend spearheaded by the excellent wines from Vesevo, great attention has moved back to the interesting and unique flavours on offer from Campania's native grapes. As well as the Lacryma Christi wines we also have again our own Aglianico and Falanghina which have been of a consistently high quality ever since we started putting our name to our favourite bottles.

FRIULI VENEZIA-GIULIA

A region of great quality for white wine production, most of the excellent wines from the region are snapped up by locals before the rest of us get our hands on them. That said, we managed to prise the well-regarded Specogna Pinot Grigio Ramato from their grasp once again. We also intend to keep the Toblar Sauvignonas which has gained critical acclaim. We also have some choice wines from Silvio Jermann, a producer well decorated by Gambero Rosso. Of particular note is the rich, buttery, grandly-titled Were Dreams Now It Is Just Wine, a blend of great complexity.

LAZIO

Frascati is one of several styles of Italian wine which has suffered in the eyes of the public after being linked with inexpensive, watery, nondescript products. However, also like many styles of Italian wine, it has benefited from a recent increase in investment in the region. We would be remiss in our duties if we did not showcase an example of Frascati as it should be, that example coming once again from Casale Marchese. The 2007 is elegant, savoury and robust, a white of distinction.

LOMBARDIA

From the northwest of Lombardia we have some Infernos from Valtellina, produced by Nino Negri and Nera. We also have the 5 Stelle Sfursat from Negri, produced only in the best years in limited quantities from Chiavennasca, otherwise known as Nebbiolo, to produce a potent, deep red wine. Also worthy of consideration are the wines from around Lake Garda, which are represented here by a refined, subtle Merlot and some stunning whites. The new vintages from Cavalchina are amazing, the Bianco di Custoza in particular impressing with its electric acidity and delicious fruity flavours. The full-flavoured and creamy Lugana Brolettino from Ca' dei Frati completes the selection.

MARCHE

Located on the east coast of Italy, Marche produces great wine to match with the seafood-focussed cuisine of the region. The style of wine most well-known to international customers is Verdicchio, our Verdicchio Classico Stefano Antonucci from Santa Barbara remaining our example of choice. A dry wine, this possesses great length and concentration.

PIEMONTE

The world-renowned Piemonte is the birthplace of many fine wines, mainly elegant and complex reds such as Barolo and Barbaresco. However Piemonte is also the home of Gavi, a clean and crisp wine backed by a fullness of flavour that has proved very popular of late. The Gavi di Gavi from Terre da Vino is leagues ahead of any other Gavi we have tried. The Nebbiolo Langhe from Produttori del Barbaresco is an excellent introduction to both a superlative winemaker and to the region's more famous red wines.

PIEMONTE-BARBERA

While we may desire the prestige afforded by having a Piemontan wine on our dinner table, we aren't always in the mood for a heavy, oaky bruiser of a wine. For that we have Barbera, when made correctly an approachable early-drinking style. Araldica's Ceppi Storici has impressed enough for us to keep it on our list as has the cheaper Barbera from the same producer. We also have the more expensive La Luna e i Falo from the outstanding Terre da Vino along with the more full-bodied Conca Tre Pile from the respected Aldo Conterno.

PIEMONTE-BAROLO

The fourth vintage of Barolo 'Revello' is now in stock. The 2004 provides a more approachable, early-drinking style than the richer 2003 vintage. We also have the highly-regarded Paesi Tuoi from Terre Da Vino on the list which is drinking very well just now. To complete the set we have a great award winning 2004 vintage from Massolino fresh on our shelves.

PUGLIA

Puglian wines have a reputation for being cheap, cheerful and heavy on the alcohol, owing to the region's hot and heavy climate. Our small but perfectly formed Puglian selection will make you cheerful but our Primitivo from Conviviale and our own label Brindisi Rosso display a little more refinement than you might expect. In particular Cantine Due Palme have outdone themselves on their new vintage of Brindisi, which is why we are glad to keep it as our representative of this region.

SARDEGNA

We continue to see good things from Sardegna, Cantine Santadi once more remaining our producer of choice. They have taken advantage of the excellent winemaking conditions to produce the Grotta Rossa and Rocca Rubia from Carignano grapes, each wine ascending in order of elegance and richness. We have also added a Cannonau Riserva from Sella & Mosca, an example of the most famous red wine in Sardegna which is a large, meaty wine.

SICILIA

Sicily contains more vineyards than any of the other Italian regions, but an average Sicilian consumes less wine than elsewhere in Italy - which means all the more for us! Planeta's range remain strong performers, combining more well-known grape varieties with some of Italy's finest indigenous produce. In addition we have the excellent-value Fiano and Nero D'Avola from Mandrarossa, the Fiano being a recipient of several IWC Gold medals for 2007.

TOSCANA

One of the primary regions of Italy for high-quality reds, Toscana holds the most DOCG denomination wines in the country. When coupled with the incredible quality of some of the wines designated IGT such as Tignanello, you have a region that is hard to beat in terms of the number of top-end wine styles produced. The key white wine is the stunning, dry, rich Vernaccia from Panizzi. As for reds we have a good selection of Rosso di Montalcino's and Rosso di Montepulciano, as well as their big brothers – the Vino Nobiles and Brunello Di Montalcinos from a variety of top-quality producers. Supertuscans from the likes of Le Pupille and Marchesi Antinori make up our respectable stock of both aged and young wines from the region.

TOSCANA-BRUNELLO

Toscana sadly suffered from an inconsistent year for quality wine production in 2002, some Brunello winemakers allegedly came under scrutiny for adding small amounts of Cabernet Sauvignon and Merlot to their production to flesh out the wine. That said, the 2004's from Cantine di Montalcino have started to arrive and the other producers will not be far behind.

TOSCANA-CHIANTI CLASSICO

2006 vintages are very encouraging, meaning that right now there are few better times to enjoy this iconic Italian red. Of particular note are the wines from Isole e Olena and Fontodi, who have been responsible for some outstanding Chiantis. What's more, we still have some Riserva Chianti from the sought-after 2005 vintage by Cantine Leonardo which we are sure won't remain on the shelves much longer – don't miss out.

TOSCANA-CHIANTI COLLI SENESI

The Chianti Colli Senesi zone makes wines that are geared towards earlier drinking, tending towards more fruit-driven wines than elsewhere in the DOC. Cerro Del Masso's Chianti performed well at recent tastings and our own-label 'Fiasco' has been a popular wine for several years for its accessibility and fun traditional packaging.

TOSCANA-CHIANTI RUFINA

Chianti Rufina is known for elegance and longevity. Once more we have been impressed by Selvapiana and so we have retained them on our list without hesitation. The standard release of Chianti has been blended with the grapes from the discontinued Riserva, making it a much better and more deeply concentrated wine than its Normale designation would have you believe. Their single-vineyard Bucerchiale is so delicious we are struggling to find new adjectives to describe its quality, so will instead just urge you to find out for yourself...

TOSCANA-SASSICAIA

Voted number 2 out of 50 in Decanter Magazine's - Italy's Best-Ever Reds - feature, Sassicaia was the first of the Supertuscans to buck the trend of the restrictive DOC system to create a richer and more complex wine than the somewhat lighter local styles on offer. The Marquis Mario Incisa della Rocchetta used French grapes at his estate at Tenuta San Guido to produce this most excellent deep red wine. We are fortunate enough to have examples from many of the vintages produced over the past 20 years, from the good yet affordable ones to the stratospheric.

TOSCANA-TIGNANELLO

Marchese Antinori's most famous wine, the Tignanello is primarily Sangiovese blended with a touch of Cabernet Sauvignon and Cabernet Franc. While not the first of the Supertuscans (an honour belonging to Sassicaia), it was Tignanello which sparked revolutions in 1971 in the Italian wine industry over what was possible in the country's viticulture. This occurred not just because it was made with French grapes as an integral part of the blend, but because such a wine was just so good when grown in Italian soil.

TRENTINO ALTO-ADIGE

Lying on the border between Italy and Austria, the Germanic influence on the culture of the region and subsequently its viticulture has been considerable. Coupled with the cooler climate owing to its more northerly location, one should expect aromatic wines of great elegance and concentration. Franz Haas is an accomplished winemaker of tremendous skill with white wines, his Pinot Nero also worthy of careful consideration.

VENETO

Venetian reds range widely; from the light, easy to drink Valpolicella to the grand Amarone, you will find some vino rosso suitable for every occasion. In our collection we are privileged to have not one but three of the best producers in the region represented: Tommasi, Brigaldara and Allegrini. The whites are also very well known, with the Garganega grape being used by the likes of Pieropan to create the sort of refined, crisp wines you didn't know Soave was capable of becoming. We have also tracked down a new Pinot Grigio from Alpha Zeta which impressed us enough to take it on under our own label, replacing our previous versions.

ITALIAN DESSERT WINES

At V&C we have a wide range of dessert wines, ranging from the light Moscato Passito from Araldica, bottled under our own label, to Recioto della Valpolicella from Giovanni Allegrini, and Vin Santo from some of the best Tuscan Chianti producers such as Selvapiana and Antinori, whose light wine range is also well-represented on our list. When creating a performance, you always want to have the audience leave on a high note: Treat your guests to a dessert wine at the end and ensure they leave singing to your tunes!

ITALIAN DRY SPARKLING

We are delighted to retain the range of Proseccos from Ruggeri, still head and shoulders above all of the other Proseccos we have tasted recently. They are fresh, light yet bursting full of flavour, the Riserva Giustino Bisol in particular so very complex at a relatively inexpensive price. For those looking for something in the vein of Champagne, try the range from Giulio Ferrari whose sparkling wines are very elegant and refined. We also have the Gran Cuvee Rose and Cuvee Brut from Bellavista, both outstanding sparkling wines from Franciacorta in Lombardy. Our sparkling range covers all prices and styles, making them perfect for any occasion!

ITALIAN SWEET SPARKLING

We have assembled a selection of good-quality sweet sparkling wines from across Italy which suit either as an accompaniment with desserts, as an aperitif, or even as a straightforward party fizz. Of particular note are the Gioioso Rosso and Bianco, firm favourites with the customers of V&C for many years. The same producer has also come up with a Fragolino, a delicate wine infused with strawberries. If you like delicate sweetness and fruity effervescence, then celebrate with one of our great selection.

ARGENTINA

Just a few years ago a prospective wine buyer may have approached the idea of Argentinian wine with trepidation. However the sheer quality of wine on offer, particularly from the heart of Mendoza, has quickly forced a rethink. Pair a juicy steak with a Malbec-based powerhouse of blackberry and spice and you will be hard-pushed to drink anything else with your sirloin. The wines produced from Bonarda should also not be overlooked, having a more earthy character with pleasing aniseed notes. We have retained our wines from Las Hormigas this year, as well as adding a young Malbec from Bianchi which is an undeniably great wine.

AUSTRALIA-ADELAIDE HILLS

Possessing a cooler climate compared to other regions of Australia, winemakers in Adelaide Hills have been doing great things with a variety of grapes. The majority of the region suits early-ripening styles such as Chardonnay and Pinot Noir while the northwest sees enough sun to allow the growth of high-quality Shiraz and Cabernet Sauvignon. We have on our shelves the wines from Michael Smith and Martin Shaw, excellent expressions of Chardonnay and Sauvignon Blanc for the white are joined by the great 2006 vintage of their Shiraz.

Victoria's oldest wine region, the Yarra Valley's cool climate makes it ideal growing classic varieties. Old world influences are imbued with a quirky charm at the Innocent Bystander Winery, where Phil Sexton creates high quality wines that are playful, exotic and great value. From the Cote-Rotie influenced Shiraz-Viognier, or the Alsacian style Pinot Gris, these wines are great fun and easy on the pocket.

AUSTRIA - OSTERREICH

While Austrian wine had been overshadowed by the internationally-renowned wines of their northern neighbour, recently people have been starting to take notice of what the country has to offer, in particular the indigenous Grüner Veltliner producing dry, peppery, crisp whites. Fred Loimer is one of the best producers, also crafting a Riesling of intensity and great ageing potential. We have a Blaufrankisch from Heinrich Weingut, a hardy grape variety which, when treated correctly, shares characteristics with the best wines of Beaujolais.

Canada has made its mark on the wine scene through the production of top quality dessert wines. Ice Wine is made from various varieties, we believe the variety most suited to the production is Vidal. A native Canadian variety it strikes a harmonious blend of acidity and intense sweetness.

CHILE

When the Spanish imported grapes with which to make Communion wine in the 1500's, those less concerned with the liquid's application as part of a religious ceremony took to the production (and drinking!) of wine wholeheartedly. Today Chile is one of the greatest locations from which to get high-quality wine at relatively inexpensive prices. Our selection may appear cheap but there is nothing cheap about the fresh fruit and delicious flavours contained within. Of particular note are the wines made from Carmenere, spicy, earthy and powerful wines that hold up to a variety of strongly-flavoured meat dishes. Vina Chocalan have produced the best expression we have tasted to date.

FRANCE - ALSACE

The aromatic Gewurtztraminers and elegant Rieslings of Alsace denote the region as a byword for excellent crisp white wines. The perfumed noses of Alsatian wines are recommended as great matches for spiced Asian cuisine as their high levels of acidity cut through oily dishes easily. One of the best winemakers in this region is the Trimbach Estate, consistently producing highly-regarded wines.

FRANCE - BEAUJOLAIS

98% of the vineyards of Beaujolais are planted with Gamay vines, producing a wine which is light, easy to drink and perfect for social situations. While there are many inexpensive examples of this wine on the market, it is possible to coax a wine of high-quality and excellent craftsmanship from Gamay's fruity juice. Domaine Vissoux are one team who have the skill required to do just that, their Beaujolais demonstrating the approachable qualities of the region's output while retaining an elegant structure.

FRANCE - BURGUNDY RED

For the ultimate expressions of Pinot Noir, red Burgundy offers a wide variety of contrasting styles. The Boisset Bourgogne Pinot Noir is delicate yet shows piercing red fruit and good concentration on the nose, while the Lecheneaut Nuits-Saint-Georges is a powerful and robust Pinot, full of tangy blackberry and spicy game and liquorice notes.

FRANCE - DESSERT

We have some very special treats in store for everyone looking for a way to end a meal in style – some bottles of Chateau d'Yquem Sauternes, dating from as far back as 1925! Admittedly, these wines are not the sort of things you would buy every week, but in the words of Victor Hugo "As the purse is emptied, the heart is lifted", so while your purse would be considerably lifted, your heart would soar so high it might never come back down again! A treat, certainly, but everyone deserves a treat now and then!

FRANCE - CHAMPAGNE

To paraphrase Winston Churchill when speaking of Champagne, "In victory, you deserve it; In defeat, you need it". Champagne has long been associated with opulent celebration and success, the sort of wine you buy when a special occasion rolls around or as an expression of wealth. However as levels of disposable income have risen over the years, so has Champagne's accessibility risen to the point where some enjoy it every month or even every week with a meal. Billecart-Salmon is one Champagne producer who symbolise excellent quality wine at a reasonable price. The high acidity of these sparkling wines works very well with seafood.

FRANCE - LOIRE

The Loire valley has produced some classic white wines that people from all over the world have tried to emulate. Sancerre and the recently fashionable-again Muscadet are dry, clean wines with a mineral edge, perfect for clearing the palate or with seafood dishes. The Vouvray Demi-Sec however is a Chenin Blanc in the old style, more subtle and somewhat more refined than most of the New World Wines.

FRANCE - RHONE

Grenache and Syrah reign supreme in this region, producing fairly robust wines. Our Cote du Rhone-Villages and Cotes du Ventoux are fine examples of good, full-bodied French reds that won't wear down your bank balance. A good region to visit frequently when choosing some wine for the weekend.

GERMANY

German wine is another region which has started to find friends again, after losing many fans disgusted with poor-quality, saccharine-sweet Liebfraumilch and Hock. Fortunately there is much more to Germany than wines which would rot your teeth at 20 paces. A good German Riesling will taste sweet, but be perfectly balanced by the acidity to make one of the best food wines in existence.

HUNGARY

Hungary has been a major wine producer for centuries, yet it has not been known for producing world-class varieties. That is, apart from the sublime Tokaji dessert wine. Our Tokaji 6 Puttonyos, the highest level of sweetness possible for this type, is made by Dobogo. This is not a wine to be frugal over – splash out on a bottle, and enjoy the complex honeyed flavour and rich intensity on the palate.

PORTUGAL

Like Italy, Portugal has hundreds of indigenous grape varieties which go into many styles of wine, yet the country has not enjoyed the same level of popularity as its other European rivals. However, there is definitely a lot more to the wines of Portugal than Port, and we have started to see some excellent wine coming through to the UK. The Caves Alianca winery has been doing great things with both red and white wines, their Bical Galeria and Tinta Roriz outstanding and unusual wines of great quality. Once you have gotten used to the idea of Portuguese wine, take the plunge on the otherworldly Quatros Ventos Reserva, full of vibrant dark stone fruits and refined oak notes.

South Africa

South Africa continues to go from strength to strength. After some shaky beginnings the country is now demonstrating an ability to produce great wines at all price levels, as a result it is one of the fastest-growing sections on our list. Stellenbosch has staked its claim as one of the world's best areas for white wines while some great things are being done with reds in areas such as Paarl. South African wines serve as an interesting bridge between the full-flavoured New World styles and the more refined Old World varieties.

SPAIN

We are extremely excited regarding our new Spanish listings which we believe seriously over-deliver in both quality and value. As there are so many locations and sub-zones, we have broken the Spanish wines up into regions for ease of selection.

SPAIN-JUMILLA

An outbreak of the phylloxera pests threatened to destroy Jumilla's output in 1989, but clever winemakers saw this as an opportunity to reinvent the region once the outbreak has been dealt with. Wines from Jumilla tend towards lighter, fruitier styles composed of the Monastrell grape, which still retain the characteristic higher alcohol levels shared by many Spanish reds. The wines from Juan Gil are particularly fine ambassadors for the region.

SPAIN-MALLORCA

One of Spanish wines best kept secrets, Mallorca has only recently begun exporting its historic wines. Some of the family owned vineyards date back to the 15th Century, and its rich heritage is reflected in the quality of the wine. The Bodega Macia Batle produces rich yet easy drinking reds and is well worth a try.

SPAIN-RIOJA

One of the most well-known wine regions of Spain, and possibly even the world, the reds of Rioja are the wines that spring to mind first when most people think of Spanish wine. There are of course many other Spanish wine-producing regions but Rioja did not achieve its fame by accident. Producing easy to drink, full-flavoured wines from the Tempranillo grape, recent vintages have only enhanced the reputation of this already highly-regarded region. Our selections from Vega Del Rayo and Artesa show off those inviting characteristics at a very reasonable price.

SPAIN-RUEDA

This old winemaking area has recently found a second lease of life, evolving rapidly since winning DO status in 1980. Extensive replanting of the area's native grapes, in particular Verdejo, has led to a new generation of fresh, young, very fruity wines.

SPAIN-TORO

This red wine zone, which attained DO status in 1987, is located in Castille-Leon, east of Zamora in the Duero Valley. The hallmark of this region is Tinta de Toro, a variant of Tempranillo, which displays in the rich, ripe and powerful wines made from it high levels of alcohol masked by deceptive fruit flavours on the palate. The new vintages of Marques de la Villa are the best place to begin to explore the area, their expression of Tinta De Toro in particular being excellent value – just be careful of that 14.5% alcohol level, because you certainly won't be able to taste it on its silky palate. From the same producer also comes a fresh young Malvasia and delicious Rosado, all at great prices.
